

2020 Nominations for MT TWS Awards

Awards are given annually in recognition of Montana wildlife professionals who have who exemplify the values of the Montana Chapter, have made remarkable professional contributions to wildlife science and/or conservation, or to those who have made it possible for wildlife professionals to be more effective. Awards are presented at the annual meeting of the Montana Chapter, to be held the week of February 3, 2020 in Butte.

To nominate, email a written recommendation for a specific award, along with a compelling justification for the nomination and a discussion of the qualifications of the nominee. While there is no prescribed format, nominations often take the form a formal letter or letters, and are often supported by several agencies, organizations, or MT TWS members. Nominations will be reviewed by the Award Committee and selections will be made in early February. Nominators will be notified of selections at that time and will be asked to assist with coordinating the attendance of the awardee.

NOTE: The person nominating a selected award recipient will be asked to prepare an abstract of the nomination package that will be read at the awards banquet.

The Chapter seeks nominations for five awards to be presented at the 2020 Conference (that's right, we have a new one!).

Nominations are due by December 14, 2019 (see below).

1. The Distinguished Service Award

This award is presented annually for cumulative, past, current, and/or continuing achievements in wildlife conservation. This is typically acknowledgment of accomplishments over a career.

2. The Biologist of the Year Award

This award is presented annually for significant achievements in wildlife conservation anytime during the five years immediately preceding the award presentation.

3. The Bob Watts Communication Award

This award is presented for significant communication in media such as professional publications, popular wildlife articles, books, movies, or videos that have a relatively wide audience.

4. The Wildlife Conservation Award

This award is given to an individual or non-governmental organization for past, present, or ongoing efforts that enhance wildlife conservation in Montana.

5. *NEW!!!*The Rising Professional Award

This award will recognize emerging professionals and rising leaders in the wildlife field who are drivers of professional progress in Montana. Eligible candidates will have worked in a part- or full-time professional capacity for at least 3 years, and no more than 8 years. Years need not be consecutive. Current students are not eligible. Employment may include, but is not limited to: wildlife and habitat management or research, conservation policy or advocacy, environmental education or program development, consultation, etc.

Nomination procedure for the Rising Professional Award: Co-workers, supervisees, supervisors, and other professional or public associates of a candidate may sponsor award submissions. Collaborations across a candidate's employment history are encouraged. Please submit 3 letters of sponsorship, no longer than one page each, that testify to the candidate's record of:

- Professional-caliber engagement with supervisors, co-workers, supervisees, and the public
- Pursuit of professional and personal development
- Community involvement and commitment to work-life balance
- Practice of inclusion, equality, and respect across human circumstance and identity

Nominations must be received no later than December 14, 2019 and be sent to Brendan Moynahan (brendan_moynahan@nps.gov).
